Risk Assessment Of Youth Who Have Sexually Abused Theory, Controversy & Emerging Strategies

edited by David S. Prescott

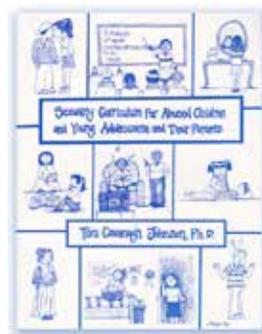

Professionals working with adolescents who have sexually abused frequently need to make decisions about these youth. However, there are no empirically validated means by which these professionals can accurately predict who will or won't become abusive in the future. With the emerging research in this field, clinicians have an obligation to consider what is currently happening when making their treatment plan and supervision decisions. This book summarizes what is known and what is not, and offers suggestions for coping with this most unenviable task.

The Forward-Focused Model

Developed by Dr. Nancy Calleja for the California Department of Juvenile Justice, the Forward-Focused Model (FFM) is comprehensive, empirically-designed treatment program for court-involved adolescents.

The Forward-Focused Model is a comprehensive, empirically-designed treatment program for court-involved adolescents. Developed by Dr. Nancy Calleja for the California Department of Juvenile Justice and implemented by the state of California in its juvenile facilities, the FFM is:

Developmentally informed, with specific attention given to the role of adolescent brain development in both conceptualizing offending behaviors as well as in the delivery of treatment.

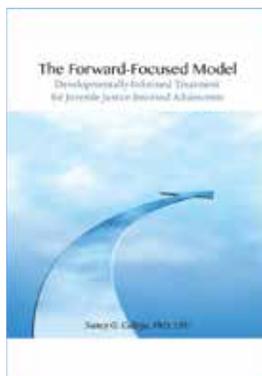

Strengths-based and future or forward-focused, emphasizing an exploration of the past to effectively address any trauma and or victimization issues, while de-emphasizing problems, magnifying strengths, and promoting the acquisition of new intra- and inter-personal skills.

A comprehensive framework for facilitating a team approach to working collaboratively throughout the treatment process to implement the wide-ranging and diverse interventions.

An “out of the box” solution. You can implement the program by following the comprehensive guidelines in the Facilitator’s Manual, without expensive outside training.

Three books form a solid foundation for implementing the FFM:

A Compelling Idea

How We Become the Persons We Are

by Alan Sroufe

A Compelling Idea is an autobiographical window into the personal and professional journey of a “superstar psychologist.”

Alan Sroufe and his team at the University of Minnesota Institute of Child Development conducted the longest running study of human psychological development, establishing the reasons why we each behave as we do and see the world as we do. Sroufe’s groundbreaking theoretical and empirical contributions to the fields of developmental psychology and developmental psychopathology have been reported to the academic world in over 150 papers and journal articles and seven books.

From the beginning of his academic career, Alan’s motivation to pursue the study of human development was personal. Having been raised in a dysfunctional family, he wanted to know why he had the problems he did and how his mental health could be improved.

A Compelling Idea is his personal story of this road to discovery.

As one reviewer observed, “It is hard to imagine a person with any curiosity regarding who they are and how they developed who would not be fascinated by this book.”

“This book is brilliant! Alan Sroufe is one of the most thoughtful and inspiring social scientists in the world. This compelling memoir should be read by everyone.”

David Prescott joined the staff of Safer Society in early 2020, right about the time the COVID pandemic was sweeping across the globe. David, who has spent much of his professional life helping to build conduits for the sharing of knowledge and experience across our field, immediately suggested that we begin a free webinar series to keep professionals connected while they worked in quarantine.

Helping Others in Trying Times—the overarching theme of the series—proved extremely popular, with hundreds of attendees for each event. When people began asking about getting continuing education credit for the webinars, we reluctantly had to say no, since the format of the presentations was too informal to receive approval by CE granting agencies.

However, this did make us realize there was an ongoing need for more formal trainings that could earn attendees Continuing Education Credits.

Thus, the Continuing Education Center at Safer Society was born.

Presented by leading experts in the field, and hosted by David Prescott, our slate of training programs is a great way to earn Continuing Education Credits while building focussed skills in a specific topic or area of expertise.
